OFFICES OF DOW•HOWELL•GILMORE•ASSOCIATES INC

Originally named Alden B. Dow, the architectural firm of Dow•Howell•Gilmore•Associates Inc (DHGA) was established in Midland, Michigan, by the late Alden B. Dow in 1934. DHGA's West Palm Beach office opened in 1983. The two offices employ a combined staff of approximately 20 persons. Our in-house disciplines include architecture, interiors, and land planning. Our architects currently hold licenses in Michigan, Florida, Ohio, Missouri, Virginia, Minnesota, Washington, D.C., Texas (pending), Illinois (pending), and Wisconsin (pending).

Our philosophical roots are based in the prairie school. We consequently refrain from using the latest architectural clichés. Every project is a fresh beginning and a new challenge. A building design should be the product of constant awareness of new ideas and concepts and a continuing search for better or more practical solutions to any problem. If a design can satisfy the many unique combinations of design criteria, it will be both successful and satisfying.

Our projects cover a broad spectrum, from small to large, private and public, and from residential through corporate and hospitality work. A conscious effort has been made to preserve this diversity in order to provide clients with optimum experiential background. We look to our clients to provide the inspiration for a unique statement and each project must be a credit to their values. A project must reflect individuality where there is an appropriate balance between form and function while integrating budget and time parameters as well.

DHGA has 70 years of distinguished history and is nationally recognized and acclaimed for significant, creative, and innovative planning and design.
